Apple Leather

Made from 50% apple peels and 50% polyurethane, apple leather is a byproduct of the apple juice industry. The repurposing of apple skin also keeps them from decomposing and producing methane that contributes to climate change. Durable, breathable, UV-resistant, and hypoallergenic.

How Apple Leather is Made

1

Apples are harvested from an orchard in Bolzano, a valley nestled among hills and vineyards set in the Northern Italy.

2

After juicing, the peels are rescued for a higher purpose.

3

The apple peels are ground into a fine powder.

4

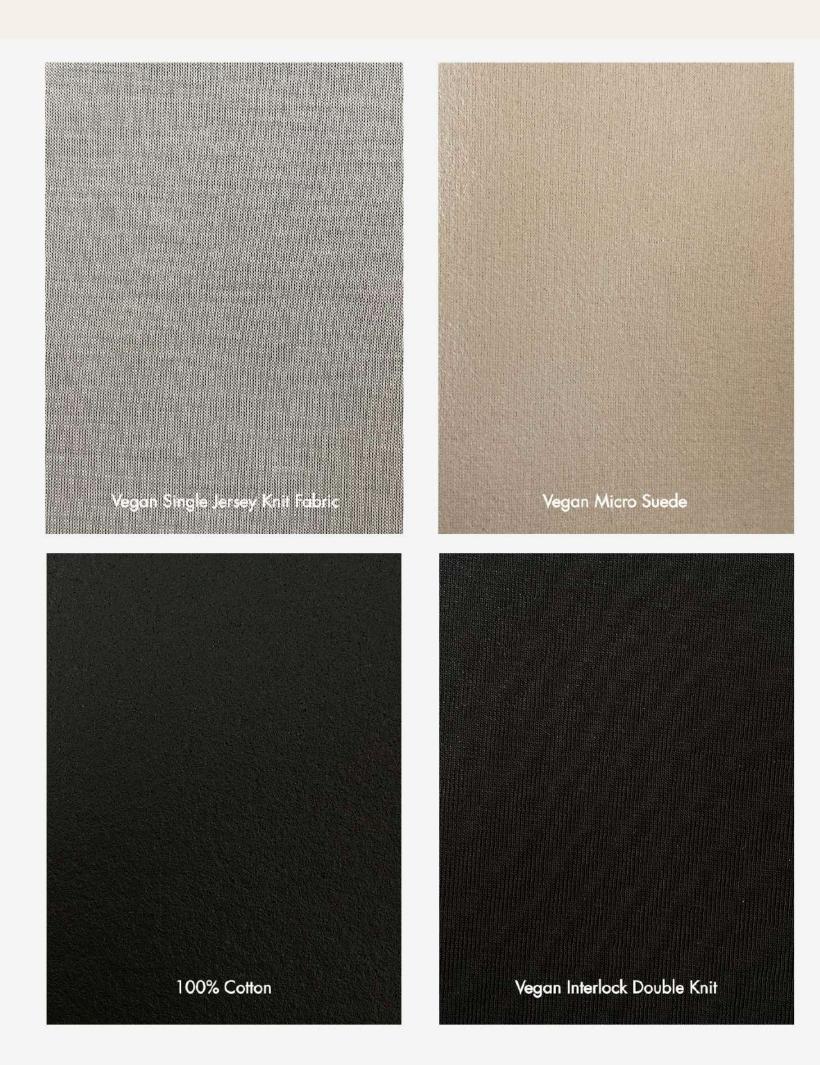

The powder is mixed with harmless, non-toxic, organic pigment and transforms into bio-based leather. The apple leather makes up the uppers of every piece in the VEERAH APPEEL collection.

REUSE apple peels, which would have been wasted.

REDUCE greenhouse gas and environmental impact.

RECYCLE water & non-toxic chemicals.
